“It has been a pleasure to work with Kingdom Press; it is evident they are serving the local church as a ministry. The products and tools they bring to the table are excellent. The business directory is an effective way for our members to identify those businesses in our church that they could support through buying goods and services.

The directory also allows us to leverage the relationships with our identified business owners and involve them in Christian Roundtables. Through Kingdom Press' relationship with Truth@Work, we have formed several Roundtable groups which meet monthly to discuss the integration of their spiritual, professional and personal lives. As a result, we have many professionals excited about the church's interest in them.

I would highly recommend that churches consider similar steps. Whether or not we realize it as pastors, there is a gap that exists between the lives of our business leaders and the church. As a former executive, I have looked for tools to bridge this gap over the years and found little within the church. With this group and their tools, I am excited about the possibility of reclaiming the tremendous mission field that exists in the marketplaces across America today! ”
